EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Community Wellness Worker

One Year Term Position

Full-time (65 hrs bi-weekly)

The Candidate

The ideal candidate will hold a degree or diploma in one or more of the following: social work, psychology, psychotherapy, or a related field, or have extensive relevant experience combined with relevant training. The ideal candidate will have knowledge of the principles and practices of addictions counselling, prevention, pre-treatment and aftercare. The ideal candidate will have the skills to counsel and support individuals and families in achieving and sustaining healthy lives. Ability to organize and deliver workshops, develop policies and procedures, and communicate effectively and diplomatically, both verbally and in writing are required. If you are a caring, motivated individual who enjoys meeting and working with people of different cultures, this position might be what you've been looking for.

The Job

Individual and group addictions counseling, planning and facilitating community workshops, and developing and delivering prevention initiatives provide considerable diversity in the duties of this position. The Community Wellness Worker reports to the Director of the Health and Social Department and works alongside the justice coordinator, native court worker, home & community care coordinator, community recreation, community health representative and administrative assistant.

Salary: $55,026 - $66,032 per annum.
